Dear Brethern:

In our lifetime great strides have been made in science, technology, and other human activities. We have found more efficient methods to heat our homes in the winter and cool them in the summer. We have improved our means of travel and have even gone to the moon. We have also developed the capability to destroy the world, but our moral and spiritual development has fallen far behind.

Freemasonry was created with the potential of uniting all men into one Brotherhood and is the only organization in the world where men of all creeds and views can meet in harmony under the same basic principle.

We are learning that our desires to obtain material goods and gadgets is not a complete method of obtaining satisfaction or happiness. It might be that we are on the threshold of leaning toward moral and spiritual satisfaction to fill the voids in our lives.

Masonry's potential to unite men into one Brotherhood is one our greatest hopes to save mankind, and its adoption would be one great leap forward in having the world catch up with itself again. With all the benefits of Brotherhood being so obvious, why is the Brotherhood of Man such an unreachable goal?

Life is short, but there is always time for courtesy.

Fraternally,

WILLIAM C. PARR, JR., Worshipful Master
