February 1991

Brethren,

As I write this Trestleboard final decisions have not yet been made by President Bush and the world leaders regarding the critical Mid-East Crisis. The situation appears to be worsening with all out war looming on the horizon. It is passing strange that if one looks at a map of the area, he would note that the very point of origin of recorded ancient civilization (The Tigris and Euphrates Rivers) is the very point where men will be called to possibly end it.

Should the call go out for armed involvement, let we, as Masons not forget all those who will answer that call. Particularly our Brethren from the United States as well as from foreign countries. The dangers they will come to face in the conflict as well as the hardships their families will have to bare will be enormous. Let us remember them in our prayers and ask for their safe and speedy return.

And when it's over, let us continue to remember them and their duty they performed. Welcome them back . . . and back their welcome.

Fraternally,
RON
