

My Brother,

Summer is steadily approaching, and we "are now about to quit this sacred retreat of friendship and virtue, to mix again with the world. A midst in concerns and employments, forget not the duties you have heard so frequently inculcated, and so forcibly recommended in this lodge. Be diligent, prudent, temperate, discreet."

My wife told me of a recent conversation she had with a very good friend of hers, where she discussed basic motivators, or priorities, that direct our decisions through life. Her friend categorized these motivators into five distinct areas, which were career, friends, love, family, and self esteem. Each individual ranks these categories differently, depending upon their own priorities.

Reflecting upon this concept, I realized that this is fundamentally accurate. I also realized that any decision, or commitment, made in any one of the categories would interfere with the remaining categories. Such as how making a commitment in our careers would negatively impact our friends, love, and family. This often leads to turmoil and stress.

How do you rank your priorities, or commitments? When reviewing this list, I find it difficult to rank these categories, since I consider most of these top priorities. That is why I must commend our Senior Warden, Rich Panas. Rich has recently received his Master's Degree. He accomplished this while maintaining his commitment to his family and the lodge.

This must have been a tremendous burden and undertaking, and I can only imagine the sacrifices he made along the way. When I began advancing in the chairs of the lodge, I soon realized the amount of work, dedication, and effort that was required to be employed. I made a decision to hold back my career, certifications, education, and any possible advancement to maintain the commitments that I had already made. It was, and remains to be, a rough and rugged road.

Fortunately, the lessons learned in Freemasonry and the application of its sublime principles have guided and directed me down the road. As we part for the summer break, reflect upon your commitments and the influence of Freemasonry on your life.

Fraternally,
Brian N. Myers
Worshipful Master
